“ to Tim Hassett,

Dear Tim, I read in today's paper the obituary for your mother who died last Saturday. I want to extend to you, your wife, and the boys my deepest sympathy at your loss. I see she lived to age 93 which is a long life these days, but as we all know, the lost of one's mother is never easy to bear. Our mothers are the only ones who have loved us unconditionally since the day we were born, and even before. To loose your first best friend is not easy no matter how many years you had together. May God give you peace of mind knowing that your mom is home with God. I remember meeting your mother at your house one afternoon when I came to visit you.
